ELLE

history

80
ELLE

On November 21, 1945, Hélène Lazareff, born in Russia and raised in Paris, launched a modern women's magazine that would become an indispensable part of every woman's home in France and later around the world.

Inspired by her time working as a journalist for major media outlets in New York during World War II, Lazareff began developing her own women's magazine concept.

The fundamental editorial approach was to provide women with privileged and unparalleled access to fashion and beauty while maintaining a close relationship with readers. The magazine's cornerstone was the principle of "irony in seriousness, seriousness in seriousness."

Lazareff wanted only the best for her readers and placed great value on them. She believed that strong, independent women deserved to be seen as women in their communities. Women who invested in key issues, achieved financial independence, and were equal to men.

ELLE's internationalization began in the United States and the United Kingdom in 1985 and now has 50 editions worldwide. Lazareff's unique visions have evolved into a concept so powerful and meaningful for women that it has become a global brand.

The core elements of this global brand are: Fashion, Beauty & Health, Society, Sustainability, Culture, and Lifestyle.
